Deleting a Message from Yahoo Groups

Question from correspondent:
I was a member of the anosmia yahoo group. I was wondering if you can advise me. Today I did a Google search on myself and found (on the very first page) copies of letters I responded to when I was corresponding with others there. Do you know how I can get them deleted from that site?

Karl’s response:
Hopefully you are still subscribed to the group. If so, point your browser to http://health.groups.yahoo.com/group/anosmia/. Enter, in the “Search Conversations” box at the top of the page, a keyword that will help you find the message you wish to delete. Then click “Search Groups.”

Here I searched for “Wuensch.”

When you find the message you wish to delete, click on its title to open it up.
Yahoo servers are alleged to have been affected, but the test I just ran indicated that any vulnerability has been fixed. This does mean that your information was not compromised earlier.

The test: http://filippo.io/Heartbleed/#groups.yahoo.com

Cheers,

Karl L. Wuensch

---

Click on garbage can in the lower right to delete the message.

Return to the Smell Disorders Discussion Groups Page.